Laure Croftenssen
By Horacio Gonzalez

Little is known form the past of Laure Croftenssen. She is said to be the youngest daughter of a noble and rich family of Marineburg. Like many of the daughters of the imperial nobility, she was sent to study to a Sisters of Sigmar's convent, where she learned to master her body and mind. When she was novice, the Count of Sylvania sponsored a peregrination to an old Sigmar sanctuary in Sylvania’s forests and the convent selected several sisters and novices for escorting the pilgrims, and Laure was in the group. The history doesn’t tell us the exact fate of the pilgrims, only says that nobody saw them again. All of them disappear in Sylvania’s forests, all of them but Laure, that returned to Marineburg horribly injured and with the fires of determination burning in her eyes. She is said to have left the convent and pursued a career of adventure, driven by the hate to the undead. When she learned about Khemri, its Pyramids, its treasures... and its undead guardians she began the voyage to the desert land, where she has earned the reputation of being one of the most intrepid and successful Tomb Raiders of the country.

  You've seen Lara Corft, you know the drill
Fast reload: The Adventurers Pair of Handguns are master crafted handguns made from the Empire Guild of Engineers, and it uses a new ammunition load mechanism, faster than traditional reload process. A character with an Adventure Pair of Handguns can fire ONCE in every fire phase (like with a normal pair of handguns) but in hand to hand combat she can choose:

- making two attacks in the first round of close combat and after that picking another weapon
- making one attack in every round of hand to hand combat
