BEWARE THE THING IN THE WOODS...
If ye go down to the woods today be sure of a chilling surprise! Several reports have come in from settlements and small farmsteads in Ostmark of a creature that stalks the dark woods. 'Tis reputed to be a beast of gargantuan size and supernatural vigour. A variety of tales of equally varied reliability have given this beast as either a wolf, bear or beastman of monstrous proportions with huge razor-sharp talons and fangs like daggers. Whether these wild speculations are true no-one knows for sure, for those who have set out to quell the beast have never returned. The local watch have advised all travellers to only travel during daylight hours and if they are forced to make their journey after dark, not to stray off the paths. Beware, for more fearsome creatures than beastmen prowl the dark wilderness of the Empire.

TAYLES OF A MYSTERIOUS STRANGER.
Strangely coinciding with the fell stories of the 'Thing in the Woods', are the tales surrounding a most peculiar fellow. A man, if indeed that is what he is, has been witnessed travelling from isolated farmstead and coaching inn, asking queer questions about disturbances amongst local cattle! Perhaps the most conspicuous article worthy of note is the man's attire, for it has been reported that this fellow dresses in similar manner to the rangers of the wilds – tattered cloak & sturdy boots. That's where the similarity ends, however, for the grim man adorns his face with a frightful horned mask and festoons his body with axes, pouches and strange icons. Is this stranger friend or foe? Sigmar-fearing folk would be well advised to stay away.

GAMES WORKSHOP
New in Town...

This issue we have the third set of releases for the Empire in Flames wilderness setting. These models were designed by in-house Fanatic sculptor Felix Paniagua and GW miniatures designer Dave Thomas.

First up, we have a new Hired Sword for Empire in Flames who stands proudly alongside the Highwayman and Roadwarden. This the grim Beast Hunter. This model was sculpted by that GW miniatures designer of much repute, Dave Thomas. This is possibly one of the most characterful Hired Swords we’ve seen. Armed with two axes and dressed in the flayed skins of his chosen enemies – Beastmen – the Beast Hunter cuts a disturbing pose. Dave has given special attention to the almost feral attire of this Hired Sword. He wears an armchair, made from the leathery face of a slain Beastman, and upon his back is a trophy rack with the broken skulls of his most despised enemies. The Beast Hunter comes as a single miniature and the rules can be found on page 8 of this magazine.

Next, we have the sometime target of the Beast Hunter’s less than affectionate attention – the Thing in the Woods. This massive brute was crafted by the skilled hands of freelance sculptor Felix Paniagua. Felix was obviously inspired by the fine French werewolf film of recent years ‘The Brotherhood of the Wolf’ and the beastie of that tale. Felix’s creation really is a beast that nightmares are made of – all serrated spines, claws and huge (real huge!) jaws this monster will be more than a match for even the most veteran of warbands. So, Morheim players beware! The Thing in the Woods comes as a complete kit and the rules can be found on page 8 of this magazine.

These models are available as individual blister packs and can be purchased from your local direct sales centre (see the ‘How to Order’ section on the Contacts page opposite).

THING IN THE WOODS

BEAST HUNTER

Ye Editor Speaks

Welcome, my twisted brothers, to this, the twenty-eighth issue of our fine Town Crier magazine. We've finished our report from the City of the Damned and near the end of our exploration of the dark, foreboding wilderness of the Empire. So what's next? I hear you cry through misspent lips? Well, this issue we commence with a new series of articles based on the ramshackle settlements and encampments that ring the cursed city like plague sores.

In the penultimate installment of Ye Empire in Flames, wilderness setting, we bring dark tales of the mysterious stranger the Beast Hunter. Also we try our best to quell the myths surrounding the dread Thing in the Woods.

Our friend and colleague, Aaron Ishmael, takes a trip to the southern land of Tilea, but it's not all been lazy days of wine and pasta. Read all about how our Tilean cousins live and fight in Tilean Days...

Read on and expand your knowledge of Ye forbidden lore.

It is with great sadness that we have to inform readers that the editorial above will be Steve's last for Town Crier magazine. On the 22nd of September we learnt that Steve had died unexpectedly. We are, quite simply, devastated. The fanatical design studio will simply not be the same place without Steve and we already miss him and his care and dedication. We hope Steve's friends will have been touched by this very difficult time. Readers who would like to send their condolences can do so at our website at www.specialist-games.com/cond.asp

"Death is more universal than life; everyone dies but not everyone lives."
A. Sachs
In this, the prelusive instalment of Empire in Flames, we have some new Hired Swords exclusive to the Empire in Flames wilderness setting. These new characters follow the generic rules for hiring and maintaining Hired Swords from page 147 of the Mordheim rulebook.

The Devil of the Drahnas!

The forest gloom was like a death shroud in the creeping silence of the Drahnas. The arboreal void bade the promise of dark imaginings, of bestial torture and debauched acts of inhuman lust. Seldom were the calls of birds heard, or an errant shaft of sunlight that had lost its way seen; even the breeze beld the stink of blood. A man would be foolish indeed to wander such paths in the dark, to traverse such belligerent terrain without armoured escort or even a guide.

And in spite of that a figure wandered there, along darkened pathways, scoured bracken, crunching loudly underfoot, a mass of blackness before him, the eyes of devils at his back.

“Encircle him!”

The forest was thickening, all the while the outside world becoming ever more remote, all but a faded memory. And yet the traveller continued, seemingly unaware of the creatures stalking him.

Boraash sped quickly through the black bracken, sweeping past low lying branches, moving rapidly through thick foliage. The rest of his soul bound was a blur as they too raced ahead of the human prey. Boraash felt his shaggy mane twitch in anticipation. He could almost taste the blood he would soon drink.

A red haze overlaid Gorgoth’s vision. Sharp and shivering tree limbs lashed at his face but they did not deter him, a frenzy was upon his very soul and he plunged headlong full of blood fevered zeal. Fangs bared, he was about to spring out in the open to tear the man-things flesh and devour it whole when a sharp spurted stake pierced his heart, impaling his body the forest floor.

Kornak’s instincts had warned him to stay back, to remain in the wake of Boraash and Gorgoth. His animal eyes widened when he saw Gorgoth pitched into the air, a thick fountain of blood issuing from his back like black rain. Boraash had stalled, poised to attack. Kornak watched him slow, acutely aware that their prey had suddenly and abruptly disappeared...

Boraash sniffed the air, ears twitching, fear creeping upon him at the grim sight of Gorgoth, but he could find no trace of the man-thing’s stench. He would feast on his brethren’s carcass after he had bled the man-thing; he would suck the flesh from his bones, be... would...

A silver-grey blur and a whistling in the trees silenced Boraash’s intent. He fell back, a hefty bladed throwing axe embedded deep in his skull, thick, oily matter oozing down the haft.

Kornak snorted in fear as Boraash was thrown off his feet. His eyes darted back to the prone shape of Gorgoth, his muttering with his own blood. When he looked back a figure was silhouetted against the gloom. At first he thought it was Boraash, somehow having survived the axe blade. But one of his horns was broken and he didn’t smell right. It was the traveller. He had come back.

“Man-thing!”, Kornak roared in a feral rage, bursting through the branches and foliage as if they were nothing. He raised a crudely, gorse-splattered mace intent on pulping the man’s skull like paste. He would eat the grey jelly within. But as Kornak swung for the killing blow the man-thing pulled a sharp axe as if from the forest air. Kornak felt his mace smash against the stout haft. There was a flash of silver in the man-thing’s other hand. Like fire, something bit deep. Kornak felt warm blood flowing down his side and with dying bestial eyes looked upon the visage of his slayer and balked in terror. For there before him was a thing more bestial than his brethren, eyes burning with animal hatred, body swathed in foul-smelling skins of his kin, doused in anguish that burned Kornak’s nose and mouth. He had encountered a devil, a devil of the woods, his nightmare, his scourge.

Vantigan allowed the foul body of the bestial spawn to slide like spoiled meat from his blade. Then, without pause be backed off the creature’s head with a single, powerful blow. In moments he had stripped it of flesh and other matter and rammed it deep upon a stake. It would make a fine trophy for his rack. But he had other prey that yet eluded him in these woods. Night was close and that would bring it into the fold. These bestmen had been harried and vanquished by the Chevaliers would not come straight forward.
The 'thing' is a creature encounter for the Empire in Flames setting as detailed in the scenario 'The Thing in the Woods' from Town Cryer 25.

SPECIAL RULES

Large beast: The Balewolf is a huge creature and counts as a large target for the purposes of shooting and may be targeted even if it isn't the closest model.

Fear: The Balewolf is a terrible and frightening creature that causes fear.

Forged by Chaos: A creation of Chaos; the Balewolf was born from some nefarious yet unknown origin. The power of Chaos knits its form together when it is wounded and as such the Balewolf has the ability to supernaturally heal itself. At the start of each of its turns roll a D6 if the Balewolf is wounded. On a roll of 5+ one Wound is restored as its skin miraculously knits back together.

Flesh of Iron: The Balewolf's skin is thicker than toughened leather, wholly capable of turning aside blades and arrows alike. The Balewolf has an armour save of 1+ which is reduced by the Strength of the attack as normal.

Vicious Jaws: The Balewolf's massive jaws are capable of crushing a man's body in two. The Balewolf has an extra Attack from its jaws (as denoted in its profile) which is always its first attack. If this attack hits, it causes a critical hit on a roll of 5 or 6.

Lycanthrope: The blood of the Balewolf contains a terrible and powerful curse. Any model taken out of action from an attack from the Balewolf risks the taint of its dark blood (note that this only affects man-sized creatures and non-mutants). After the battle, if the model survives the attack roll a D6. On a roll of 6 any injuries the model is currently suffering are cured but they are now cursed!

In each subsequent battle whenever the cursed model is wounded they must take a Leadership test. If they fail they transform horribly before the eyes of their comrades into the Balewolf! The model now has the same stat line as the Balewolf. Any armour or equipment it was wearing is destroyed and any weapons the model was carrying are lost but may be recovered after the battle. The Balewolf will always charge the nearest model, friend or foe, if it can, otherwise it will move at maximum speed towards them. It may try and restrain itself from attacking a comrade by taking a test against its own Leadership (he may not use the leader's). If passed, the Balewolf will ignore friendly models.

Roll a D6 after the battle. On a roll of 1-3 the model returns to normal (albeit without attire...) but still carries the curse. On a roll of 4, the Balewolf takes hold completely and in its feral state disappears into the wilderness lost forever in myth and legend (remove from roster).
Encampments part 1

Introduction
These rules are designed to add a little more spice and background to your campaigns of Mordheim by allowing warbands to acquire their own base camp. In this and the following couple of articles, we will explain how warbands can take up residence in one of the encampments that surround the city and the benefits and hazards they face in doing so. These rules are purely experimental and although we would encourage players to use them, they are as yet unofficial. For those players out there with an adventurous streak and who would like to give these rules a go, we would love to hear your feedback – so send it to the usual place. In this, the first installment, we will explain how a warband chooses its encampment and makes its camp. We will also cover the first of three encampments, Singmarchen, in detail describing income, places to visit and random events that may occur.

Encampments
Since the cataclysm that smashed the city of Mordheim, crude shantytowns have cropped up beyond the crumbling city walls. At first these pitiful settlements housed the sparse remnants of Mordheim’s population. However, as soon as word reached the other towns and cities of the warbands of the magical Wyrdstone that could be found in the blackened shell of Mordheim, the treasure seekers came. The existing settlements were practically overrun by bands of mercenaries and bandits who would set up their camps in whatever tumble-down buildings were available or pitch their tents behind crude barricades. Soon there was a flood of greedy souls, many of whom were not human as the stench of Wyrdstone tempted many from afar.

There are three main settlements in and around Mordheim. Singmarchen is inhabited mainly by the loyal followers of Sigmar and is a place of law and relative order. It also attracts a large following of Witch Hunters and their ilk, and understandably mutants and the Possessed are not tolerated there. Paid and equipped watchmen are maintained for the security of those who camp within it.

There are, though, far more lawless settlements around Mordheim where scum such as Orcs and even the Possessed are known to walk freely. Nowhere is more infamous than thrice cursed Guthroath’s Den. Here life is cheap and the only law is that of the sword. Although a foul and dangerous place, there are many things that can be bought and sold here because of the shady sorts this place attracts. The last place even the toughest, most brutal of scum would think twice before making their camp there is within the haunted ruins of Mordheim itself. The dead are said to walk here and the foul servants of the Shadow Lord are everywhere, waiting to claim the souls of the unwary.

There are those, however, that brave the mutant infested cursed city even after nightfall but then again they seem quite suited to it. Foul Ratmen scurry about the sewers, Necromancers make their homes, confidant that the foolish righteous won’t disturb their unholy practices and, of course, the children of the Shadow Lord, the Possessed, claim the ruins as their domain.

Experimental Rules
When starting a new campaign, all players must decide or not to use this encampment rules. Only after their first battle may each player then try to find a settlement and make camp. First, they must decide which of the settlements they wish to set up camp in (obviously dependant upon which settlements will let them in) or if they want to risk actually staying in the cursed city. When you decide where you want them to stay, roll on the appropriate Housing chart to see what type of abode they were able to afford, steal or win gambling. A warband may only have one camp at a time and may only roll for a new camp if they lose their original one. Any effects that a camp provides start after the warband’s next battle. After each battle you may find out if you gain income, or other warriors join the warband, or if repairs need be made to the camp.

After each battle you may choose to visit locations within the settlement to procure goods and entertainment. If you don’t, you may use the Trading chart as normal. Roll a D3 to find out how many locations you may visit. Different locations can help you find items, receive healing, make money or other things. Between location visits, you must roll on the Events table to find out what happens to the warband as it carouses around the town.
A VISIT TO THE APOTHECARY
(See TC 8 - 'Sawbones' by Daniel Carlson)
Each warrior may only attempt to get treatment for one injury at a time, and only one attempt at treatment per Hero may be made during each post battle sequence. The cost for treatment is 20 gold crowns per attempt (one attempt = one roll on the table). This money must be paid before any action. Nordheim physicians demand payment in advance, while the patient is still capable of doing so!
The following injuries cannot be treated:
Chest Wound, Blinded in One Eye, and Old Battle Wound. They are permanent damage the afflicted warrior will carry to his grave.

The following injuries use the Limb Surgery table:
Leg Wound, Smashed Leg, and Hand Injury.

The following injuries use the Brain Surgery table:
Madness and Nervous Condition.

From pristine quarters to back street butcher shops, there are many places to find an apothecary. You take your life and limb literally when you enter them. I've heard tales, they have been known to amputate, ostensibly to 'keep the rot out'. If a leg was being treated, the model now has its Movement halved (rounding up); if a hand was being treated, the warrior may only use a single-handed weapon from now on.

'Sorry, lad! Done my best!' The surgery was unsuccessful, and the warrior must miss the next battle while he recovers.

'No luck!' The surgery was unsuccessful.

'Mind you stay off it for a bit!' The surgery was successful! The warrior may remove the injury and its adverse effects from his profile. He must, however, miss the next battle while he recovers.

'Shallaya be praised!' The surgery was a complete success! The warrior may remove the injury and its adverse effects from his profile.
CARTOGRAPHER

A cartographer will help the band with their exploration. He carries many different maps. You may purchase maps here without searching for them but the rules for maps from the Morcehime rulebook still apply. The cartographer is also a wealth of little tidbits of information that he is willing to sell. Most of it is useless but some isn’t. If you pay him 5 gc he will divulge some of this info to you. Roll a D6 on the following chart:

1. You may re-roll one of your Exploration dice after the next battle.
2. The information was interesting but utterly useless.
3. You may increase or decrease the result of one Exploration dice by 1 after the next battle.

Nordheim is a labyrinthine city. I know, I’ve been to almost every nook and cranny, there are dark hollows, forgotten pits, which spell death to the unwary, or the ill prepared. Some claim to know the city better than they know their own faces. They are mappamakers, cartographers if you will, old adventurers who have mapped out their routes with quill and parchment, turning their knowledge into a trade. Cartographers are rare in Signarthaven, strange, given that most folk can neither read nor write. Treasure seekers often go to these men eager for an edge, something to set them ahead of their rivals. Others who can afford it commission the creation of maps and adventurers are paid in coin to provide accurate descriptions of the dark places that exist in this world. Mathias Blank, he is the greatest known mapper in all of Skalad. He moved his business to Signarthaven, hoping to explore the city himself: such was the man’s adventurous nature. No good with a sword though, he’s a scholar through and through. He contents himself with making maps from the stories of others and frequents the many drinking dens in hope of loose lips providing a free source for his endeavours. It has been spoken in whispers alone, that he is taken to drinking, crashed Wyrdstone with his evening libation. They say it grants him visions of the city and that is how he fashioneth the most detailed maps of Nordheim. They also say this addiction has driven him mad and at night he huddles in his quarters, terrified of the dark, bubbling froth on his lips. Insight has a cruel price and dements an even greater one...

FLETCHER

The fletcher is a master at making bows and arrows, along with other missile weapons. He does not have the craft or know how to create Black Powder weapons though. When you visit a fletcher you may add +2 to find the missile weapon you are looking for (this does not count towards Black Powder weapons though).

SMITHY

Hearty blacksmiths work at the smithy where they fashion all kinds of metals into a variety of useful items. Mainly though they create weapons and armour. When visiting a blacksmith you may add +2 to your Search rolls when trying to find armour or close combat weapons.

MULESKINNER

A beast master takes care of the animals. He feeds, houses and trains horses, ponies and dogs. He reduces the difficulty of finding animals by adding +2 to your dice roll on the Trading chart.

MERCHANT

The merchant is a purveyor of a great variety of goods. He sells just about anything that’s not nailed down. The merchant gives you +1 to find Rare items.

DRINKING DEN

This is a tavern where you may play a game of chance, look for new recruits or just get smashed! You may gamble at any time in the Dancing Pig. To find out what else you can do, roll a D6 and consult the chart over the page.
Encampments

D6 Effects

1 Drugged
One of your Heroes (select randomly) partakes of a curious drink offered to him by a stranger. After one swig he feels the effect of the liquid take hold – he has been drugged! Roll a D6 on the following table:
1-3 Your Hero has been poisoned and is at -1 Toughness for the duration of the next battle.
4-6 The liquid in question is actually a very strong ale, and your hero quickly gains a taste for it. He wakes up the next morning with a pounding head.

2-3 Hireling
Taken with the joy of hot food and a good too many bottles of Bugmans, your leader and his men overspend on such luxuries by D6x10 gcs.

4-5 Bar Room Brawl
While carousing in the bar you meet many different characters and warriors. You sit down to have a few drinks with some. Roll a D6 on the following chart:
1 You are drinking with a Hallfing who, impressed with your propensity for ale, offers you his services at half the normal rate for the next battle.
2 An Ogre challenges you to a drinking contest. Roll a D6:
1-4 He drinks you under the table – you wake the next day with a terrible hangover.
5-6 You drink him under the table and he is in such awe that he offers you his services for the next battle for free.
3 You sit down to a mysterious Elven Ranger and start to tell tales of your exploits. One of your tales moves him so much, he offers you his services at half the cost for the next battle.
4 You sit down and share a drink with a Freelancer. As the night wears on you find that he and your father served in the same company together. He offers you his services for the next battle for free.
5 You find yourself drinking with a young fellow who is itching to test his metal in the Cursed City – you may add an extra henchman to your party (not above your warband’s maximum number of warriors however).
6 You sit with a fellow who looks battle hardened. As you talk, you discover that the rest of his warband was slain searching the ruins. You may ask him to join your warband as a Hero. You may add a Hero to your warband for free, although only if you haven’t got the maximum number of Heroes already.

6 Bar Room Brawl
Your leader gets into an argument with another patron in the tavern. The argument soon escalates quickly. Roll a D6 on the following table:
1 Your leader is thrashed and must make an immediate roll on the Injury table.
2 Your leader takes quite a beating and leaves D6 gcs poorer.
3 Your leader knocks the patron to the ground and takes D6x3 gcs from his purse for his impudence.
4 The patron is joined by his warband and an all-out brawl ensues. Roll a D6:
1-4 you send the warband fleeing and gain D6x5 gcs, for your trouble. 5-6 you are routed and lose D6x5 gcs (you may instead play a skirmish scenario vs a starting Middenheimer warband (900gp) if you so desire to determine the outcome).
5 The brawl attracts the attention of the watch, who arrive to throw the patron in the stocks.
6 The brawl attracts the attention of the watch who arrive to throw everyone into the stocks. You must pay D6x10 gcs to get everyone out.

Gambling
Your leader gets involved in a rather dubious game of dice. Roll a D6 and consult the table below:

Scenario: Encampment Raid

Often warbands are jealous of the accomplishments of their rivals, and the more opulent a warband’s camp is, the more successful they have been in scouring the ruins. Also, this is where they stash their loot.

Other players may challenge your warband and attack your camp in an attempt to take it over for themselves. Play a ‘Defend the Find scenario’ with the following exceptions:

- Set-up the camp in the centre of the battlefield.
- The defender cannot be routed except voluntarily and only if at least 50% of the warband are taken out of action.
- No member of the defender’s warband need take an All Alone test.
- As long as a model stays within the encampment’s boundaries, they may use the Leader’s Leadership value to roll for tests – regardless of how far away from their leader they are.
- No Henchmen group may be set-up Hidden at the beginning of the game.

If the attacker succeeds in capturing the camp he may either destroy it or occupy it (provided he is allowed within Sigmars haven).

In addition, the attacker claims the defender’s stash for his own. The defender must then roll for a new camp.

The defender may purchase any of the following items to fortify his encampment. Each of these must be represented by applicable models when using them while defending your camp.

Additional Equipment

Banner: See Mordheim 2002 annual.

Ladders: These are useful for assaulting another warband’s encampment and negate the effects of barricades and palisades – 5gcs Common.

Defences

Warband: These cost 10 gcs for a strip that is 6" long by 1" high. A warrior defending a barricade can only be hit by his opponent on an unmodified D6 score of 6 – Common.

Palisade: These cost 15gcs for a strip that is 6" long by 2" high. A warrior defending a palisade can only be hit by his opponent on an unmodified D6 score of 6 – Common.

Watchtower: This gives the defender a high platform to shoot from (this may be as tall as 8") – 20 gcs Common.

The following may be combined with the above defences or as stand alone.

Heads on spikes: These cause Fear and may be attached to barricades or palisades (the enemy must pass a Leadership test if they wish to assault them) – 5 gcs Common.

Ditch: These cost 5 gcs for a strip that is 6" long by 1" deep. It counts as difficult terrain, reducing movement by half.

Stakes: These cost 10 gcs for a strip that is 6" long. It counts as difficult terrain, reducing movement by half. In addition, those attempting to cross must roll a D6 – on a 5+ the warrior takes a Strength 3 hit with no armour saves allowed – Common.

Tunnels: These allow one Henchmen group to be held in reserve at the start of the game and may be placed anywhere on the battlefield at the start of the defender’s turn but no closer than within 8" of an enemy model, however – 15 gcs Common.

Traps: The defender may place up to three trap markers (per trap if you have more than one) anywhere within their encampment. Each marker is marked with either ‘Trap’ or ‘Decoy’ on the underside. When a model touches the marker, flip it over. If it says ‘Decoy’, nothing happens. If it says ‘Trap’ then that model takes a Strength 4 hit with no armour save – 30 gcs Rare 6.

Sigmarshaven Watch
If a resident of Sigmars haven’s camp comes under attack, the watch may turn up and assist them against their aggressors. Roll a D6 each turn and on the score of 5+ the watch have arrived and will immediately do battle with the attackers.

The watch consists of a Captain, four Swordsmen, and two Marksmen (use standard Reikland mercenaries). They are all armed with swords, wear light armour and carry shields. The Marksmen are also armed with bows.

Hired Sword – Warrior Priest of Sigmar
In the centre of Sigmarhaven is a wooden Temple of Sigmar and this attracts many fledgling warrior priests. To test their mettle against the horrors of the Cursed City, the priesthood hire out their acolytes and make careful observance of their faith, resilience and fervour.

Hire Fee: 40 gc to hire, 20 gc’s upkeep.

May be Hired: Any warband may hire a Warrior Priest of Sigmar except Witch Hunters
(they already have the warband choice!),
Middleheim mercenaries, Possessed, Orcs &
Goblins, Skaven and any other suitably ‘evil’ warbands.

Rating: A Warrior Priest of Sigmar increases the warband rating by +16 points plus 1 point for each Experience point he has.

Settlement Events Table (Roll D66)

11 THROWN OUT OF TOWN
Your warband’s wild behaviour in the many taverns and markets of the settlement attracts the attention of the Watch and they throw your warband out of town. Your warband must head back to their camp and prepare for the next battle. If your camp is in Sigmarhaven you must move to a different settlement.

12 UNEVENTFUL

13 PICKPOCKET
As your warband moves through the busy streets, your leader suddenly gets a feeling that something is wrong. He reaches for his crowns to find them gone, snatched by a robed pickpocket. Immediately cross off half your gold crowns from your treasury.

14 HALFLING SCOUT
Whilst travelling along a desolate street of the settlement, you stumble across a Halfling Scout being accosted by a gang of scum. Roll a D6 and consult the table below:

1-3 There are too many foes, and besides, you don’t much like Halflings anyway. You leave the wretch to his fate and continue on your way.

4-5 You decide to help the Halfling, and manage to save him from his fate. As thanks, the Halfling offers you a map, which you may add to your stash.

6 Your gang charges into the scum and manages to beat them off, saving the Halfling who keeps on mumbling something about an honour debt to you. You gain a Halfling Scout hired sword. The scout will fight for free in your next battle, after which he demands the usual hire fee.

15 UNEVENTFUL

16 STEAM BATHS
Your warband stumbles upon a makeshift steam bath run by some shifty looking Arabs and spends the rest of the day recuperating. You may not visit any more locations. However, any warriors that previously had to miss the next battle no longer have to due to the healing effects of the baths.

21 FIGHT
Your leader argues with a merchant who has tried to charge him too much for some cheap items. The argument grows into a brawl quickly. Roll a D6 on the following table:

1 Your leader is thrashed and loses D6 x 5 gc.

2 Your leader takes a beating and leaves D6 x 2 gc.

3 Your leader knocks the merchant to the ground and takes D6 x 5 gc for his impudence.

4 The merchant is joined by his bodyguard and an all out brawl ensues. Roll a D6. 1-4 you send the merchant and his guard fleeing and gain D6 x 5 gc for your trouble. 5-6 you are routed and lose D6 x 5 gc. (You may also play a skirmish scenario vs a Middenheim warband (500 gc) instead if you desire).

5 The brawl attracts the attention of the watch who arrive to throw the shady merchant in the stocks.

6 The brawl attracts the attention of the watch who arrive to throw everyone into the stocks. You may not visit any more locations.

22 UNEVENTFUL

23 A NICE LITTLE TARNER
A couple of shifty looking scum approach your gang asking for help with their smuggling operation. If you decide to help roll a D6 and consult the table below:

1-3 You are unable to off-load the illegal contraband and make no money.

4-6 You earn D6 x 10 gc by selling on the merchandise. Add this amount to your stash.

24 CHEATED
A dishonest trader has fooled your leader. One item (decided randomly) that you purchase in this settlement is a fake and is useless. Discard the item in question.

25 UNEVENTFUL

26 CONSCRIPTION
One of the henchmen in your warband is conscripted into the local Count’s army and is due to be shipped off in the next couple of days. Decide randomly who is conscripted and then roll a D6. On a 1, he fails to get out of his predicament and is never seen again. On a 2+, he manages to escape the barracks and returns to your camp. Your warband, however, must leave the settlement immediately otherwise the henchman risks getting re-captured. If your camp is in Sigmarhaven you must move to a new location.
31 AN HONEST DAYS WORK
Your warband is employed by a merchant to carry his wares around the settlement. Each henchman in your warband earns you 2D6 g., Add this amount to your stash.

32 UNEVENTFUL
33 RIOTOUS LIVING
Taken with the joys of hot food and a good too many bottles of Bugnam's, your warband overpowers the such luxuries by half the gold in your stash (strike it from your treasury).

34 DRUGGED
Visiting a local tavern in a seedy part of town, one of your Heroes (chosen at random) partakes of a curious drink offered to him by the barman. After one swig he feels the effect of the liquid take hold - he has been drugged! Roll a D6 on the following table:
1-3 Your hero has been poisoned and is at -1 Toughness for the duration of the next battle.
3-6 The liquid in question is actually a very strong ale, and your hero quickly gains a taste for it. He wakes up the next morning with a pounding head.

35 UNEVENTFUL
36 MISTAKEN IDENTITY
The Watch has mistaken you for a band of rabble rousers (if you are the Watch ignore this result). Roll a D6 and consult the table below:
1-2 You hastily explain to the captain that you are not who they think you are. He believes you and lets you go.
3-5 You try to explain to the captain who you are but he doesn't seem to believe you. As you talk on you realise that little money may help the situation. You pay the captain D6x3 g. (If another warband is the Watch pay them). You may ask for more. You may ask for the money to be paid at a later date. You may also choose to argue with the guard until the guardsman or the Watcher is convinced that you are not a bandit.
5-6 You try to talk your way out of this difficult situation but the captain doesn't buy it. He arrests your warband and throws them in jail. You may make no more location visits after this. He releases you after lifting your purse by D6x10 g. (remove this from your treasury). You may also choose to argue with the guard until the guardsman or the Watcher is convinced that you are not a bandit.

41 GAMBLING
You leader visits a local drinking hole and gets involved in a rather dubious game of chance. Roll a D6 and consult the table below:
1 Your leader loses D6x2 g. and comes away a little wiser.
2-5 Your leader manages to break even
6 Your leader gambles away a fat purse before Lady Luck smiles on him and he wins it all back with interest. Collect D6x2 g. in winnings.

42 UNEVENTFUL
43 JOIN THE WATCH
The captain of the Watch marks your warband as useful looking recruits for the Watch. Your warband is deemed worthy by the captain of the guard and given the chance to become watchmen. If you accept, you gain an additional 25 g. If any other warbands have to fight the guard before the next battle then they fight you instead.

44 ILLNESS
A terrible illness strikes one of the heroes in your warband (decide randomly which one). That hero must miss the next game recovering from the illness, after which they are fine to continue as normal

45 UNEVENTFUL
46 LUCKY FIND
While wandering the streets of town, one of your fighters stumbles across a small sack lying on the ground. Upon opening the sack you find it stuffed with gems. Claim the moneybag and 5 gems worth 2D6x5 g.

51 Beggars
Beggars approach your leader and, overwhelmed by their sadness, he gives each of the D6+2 pins/pledges 2 g. If your leader cannot pay he is a beggar himself, and you must roll a D6 and consult the table below:
1-2 Your leader is thrown out of town for begging (see Settlement Event roll of 11). The rest of your warband may leave town immediately so as not to risk the wrath of the guards (or their leader for that matter).
3-6 You leader gains 2D6 g. from begging on the streets.

52 UNEVENTFUL
53 REWARD
While wandering through the settlement your leader sees a poster warning that a well known assassin is reputed to be in the area. Upon reading this, he realises that he must catch his matches that of a stranger he bumped into earlier. He rushes back to the spot where he last saw the assassin and manages to apprehend him just as he dives a merchant into a dark street. Roll a D6 and consult the table below:
1 The assassin laughs, slits the merchant's throat, throws the knife at your leader's feet and flees shouting "Help, murder!" Your leader is soon surrounded by the Watch and hauled off to the gaol. By the time he manages to protest his innocence many hours have passed and he decides it is unsafe to remain away from the warband's hideout for any longer period of time. Your warband may not visit any special locations.
2-5 Your leader saves the merchant's life, for which he receives D6x5 g., but the assassin slips away.
6 Your leader saves the merchant and captures the assassin, turning him over to the Watch, for which he receives D6x5 g. The merchant is so grateful for your leader's help that he offers his services as a go-between for selling useful scrap or items that your warband has. You may add a +1 when searching for items and sell items at three quarters of their cost.

54 PET DOG
As you walk around the streets you notice that a dog has started to follow you. It joins in the fray when you scuffle with the unsavoury elements of the city. You now have a new fighting companion. Add a +1 to your wounding to your roster (even if you normally can't have one).

55 UNEVENTFUL
56 SHORTAGES
Unexpected shortages in this settlement cause all local traders to increase their prices. For the duration of your stay in this town, all weapons and equipment costs double the normal number of credits.

61 FORTUNE TELLER
One of your Heroes (chosen at random) visits a fortune teller. The teller attempts to divine the future and receives payment. Roll a D6 on the chart below:
1-4 The fortune teller is a back and doesn't know what she is talking about. Lose D6 x 3 g.
5-6 The fortune teller has seen the future and gives you insight into your next battle. You may re-roll one missed hit next battle.

62 UNEVENTFUL
63 ILLEGAL CONTRABAND
The Watch arrests a randomly determined warrior from your warband for possessing illegal contraband. The fighter is thrown in the gaol to await trial (often short and unfair by all accounts). Roll a D6 for the warband. On a 5-6 he manages to escape from his cell and makes it back to the warband's hideout in time for the next battle. On a 1-4 he is convicted of his crime and is executed at the block. Remove the warrior from the game roster.

64 COUNTERFEIT
As your leader attempts to buy some equipment, the trader refuses to accept his gold crowns, pointing out that they are counterfeit. Looking through his stash, your leader finds that indeed some of his gold crowns are counterfeit. You must discard half the number of gold crowns in your treasury as a consequence.

65 UNEVENTFUL
66 CRIME
Your leader is accused of murder and thrown into the gaol. The matter is eventually sorted out and bail must be paid. Pay D6x5 g. if you can't pay then the leader is stuck in gaol until after the next battle.
The manner in which the warbands arrive in the chosen city is not necessary to the campaign but it is great for character background and development. Players are encouraged to play games that detail their warbands travelling from the Empire to Tilea and they can choose scenarios from Empire in Flames to do this. However, once they finally get to Tilea they will probably need to search for employment as mercenaries or seek to earn money by one way or another so they can buy supplies, equipment, weapons and eventually maybe a vessel.

There are several ways of doing this: from working for the local governors or princes, guarding them in their realms or their precious merchandise in transit, to hunting down bandits or pirates who are pillaging from land and sea. These undesirable often have great prices on their heads and can make a warband turned bounty hunters incredibly rich. Local taverns are always a good place to meet prospective employers who are always eager to hire the right man, especially if he does not ask too many questions. This often turns out to be dangerous work, which always seems to draw the attention of the local authorities.

Becoming bandits could be one of the fastest ways to acquire enough gold to get a ship and crew, and sufficient weapons for the warband. But for a bloodthirsty leader, the stakes are high and with just one mistake they could find themselves at the end of a rope. If these cutthroats acquire a good ship and a blood curdling reputation is built, they could become the scourge of the Tilean sea. Even the most tight-pursed merchant would gladly part with his cargo and be at the mercy of pirates than feel their wrath.

The last option is usually reserved for those mercenaries that have found themselves down on their luck. This would be to take work on a merchant vessel or a ship on a voyage of exploration. Neither are ideal due to the dank conditions and lack of freedom. Also the basic pay is not always the best and some voyages can last for years. Free passage may not be ideal but there is a fate far worse. Press gangs are a constant threat for the unwary in any port, coastal town or city. Tilean captains are the most notorious for this practice when they become short of crew. So beware the Tilean ducet in the bottom of your ale glass!

The thing to remember about this campaign is that it is narrative driven, it is entirely down to the games master to come up with the scenarios and deal with each warband as they take different paths of adventure. This campaign lacks a rigid format and so any prospective games masters should bear this in mind as their campaign unravels. Warbands should be allowed a certain degree of freedom when it comes to the direction they take and the games master should be flexible. That said, games master is still in charge of the flow of the campaign and shouldn’t let any one player dictate the direction of the campaign to the others. Discretion is the key.
City States of Tilea

Tobaro
This is the only great city on the western shore of the Tilean Sea, situated on a rugged coastline made up of dozens of small islands. There are strange birdlike creatures called Sirens that live amongst these islands. It is said they sing such a rapturous song that they lure unwary ships to their doom. These islands are also a favourite hiding place for pirates and smugglers as there are many hidden caves and inlets, perfect for them to hide up in and count their booty. The city itself is built upon old Elven ruins and is high up on large rocky outcrops and is nigh on impregnable. In 1563, the city was overrun by Saven attacking through the network of tunnels that lie beneath the city and was only retaken years later with the help of Remas mercenaries.

Miraglano
Miraglano is the most northerly of all Tilean cities and borders the dreaded Blighted Marshes. It is often plagued by vermin and is said to suffer the worst outbreaks of disease and pestilence than any other city known to man. Many mercenaries are paid as rat catchers by the authorities. As well as disposing of vermin, they fight ongoing battles against Skaven hordes that constantly threaten to take over the city. The city is famed for its network of canals, which the people use as streets, punting their small boats laden with wares from warehouse to warehouse.

Trantino
Trantino is strange in being one of the few Tilean cities of note that is not built upon the coast and does not rely upon the sea for its trade. It is situated inland in a hilly area where most of its trade comes from the Apucnini Mountains to the east. Despite the trade it dominates with the Dwarfs of these mountains, Trantino used to be a bit of a backwater when compared to the mighty port-cities of Tilea until Marco Columbo returned from his Lusorian expeditions and great wealth poured into the city. Now the city is renowned for its lavish culture and opulence.

Remas
Remas is an ancient city situated near the middle of the eastern shores of the Tilean Sea. It is famed for its huge circular harbour spanned by a mighty bridge, again a remnant from the days of Elven settlement in the Old World. Remas has one of the most powerful fleets in all of Tilea so for sailors is never difficult to find. Because of its central position, Remas often finds itself at war with its trading rivals: Miraglano, Lucini and Verezto. Due to this, Remas have struck up a rather solid allegiance with Tobaro, and the two cities have often come to each other's aid in times of need. Since the devastating Dark Elf raid of 1487, most Remasens have harboured a deep hatred of the Nargarothi.

Pavona
This is a small inland city located at the foothills of the Apucnini Mountains. Pavona has become a serious rival to its neibour Trantino for the eastern trade routes to the Dwarf cities and mines. However, as soon as any other invader enters either territory, they join forces to defeat this new foe. Pavona is famed for its bridges that span the narrow streets and allow its nobles to move about freely, avoiding its bustling masses below.

Verezzo
This densely populated city lies inland, dominating the surrounding land with its high walls and towers. The city is very compact and crowded with people, and the streets are narrow and winding. There is good reason for this apparent discomfort for the sturdy walls and fortifications of this city occupy the only natural high ground for miles around, and its people would rather be safe than comfortable. As with Pavona, Verezzo lives much in the shadow of its powerful rivals especially Remas and Lucini.

Lucini
Lucini sits on the southern tip of the Tilean Sea opposite the island of Sartosa and is constantly at war with this neighbouring city. Having a strong seafaring tradition it has a huge fleet of galleys, which makes it the strongest naval power in the region. This is where many mercenaries have learned their skills and indeed it is thought that Lucini has the most powerful armies in all of Tilea. Its ruling prince is known for his bizarre sense of humour, which is a family trait. It is said the Prince of Lucini is most dangerous when he is laughing!

Sartosa
The island of Sartosa has a rocky coastline and a rugged interior. This island has changed hands many times since it was originally settled by the Elves. The Tileans settled there shortly after but were defeated in battle by Dark Elves and carried away as slaves in 451. Then the island was settled by Noise raiders but they were eventually defeated and then hired as mercenaries by the armies of Lucini. Then the Corsairs of Araby invaded and occupied the island as a base for piracy for nigh on 250 years until they were finally driven out by another army of Lucini that settled and strengthened its defences considerably. Since then Sartosa has become a haven for pirates who prey upon the rich pickings to be had in the Tilean Sea. It is ruled by a prince who is elected from the pirate captains of the island and whose only role is to settle the larger disputes on the island. He is usually elected for his cruelty and reputation. Most only rule for a while and come to a bloody end one way or another. This city is the most lawless of all the realms within Tilea and is not for the faint hearted. Filled with taverns and populated almost entirely by pirates there are always rumours of hidden treasure, and dubious treasure maps for sale.

Monte Castello
The fortress of Monte Castello is built on the ruins of an Elvish citadel. It is the most easterly of all Tilean cities. To the west lies its old enemy Lucini and to the east the Black Gulf and the Badlands beyond. It was originally built to defend Tilea against the Orc hordes and to this day has very strong fortifications as it has been built and rebuilt over the years. Since all cities benefit from this fortress only the best mercenaries are required to offer their services.
Scenario 1 - The Rat’s Lair

All ye freemen of Miragliao of great courage and skill are requested by Governor Maxino to attend a recruitment of such brave souls. Ye will be paid handsomely if ye act quickly and destroy this plague of vermin which blights this fair city once more.

Your warband has found itself in need of employment in the Principality of Miragliao. The most profitable work in the city is to be hired as rat catchers. The pay is very good at five gold crowns per ‘bag o’ rats’. Your warband has proved its worth at vermin killing in the past few weeks. Because of this the Governor has requested your services, along with some other mercenaries, to clear a small area in downtown Miragliao which has recently been overrun by vermin. All of the citizens have fled or died in these diseased ridden streets and the Governor is anxious to rid the city of this vile and diseased terror before it spreads to other districts throughout the city.

Terrain

A sewer network terrain board was especially constructed for this game (see the pictures). This terrain board was fairly narrow (approximately 6”) and had six levels to it, with each level accessible at either end by holes. The top represented street level, where the warbands started out. The second level was the sewers and below that were the caverns and catacombs of the vermin.

Special Rules

Multi-players: This scenario is specifically designed to be played by several players working together (come on now – you can do it!) against the games master who controls all of the bad guys.

Tunnel Fighters: Each warband taking part may have a maximum of three characters no more and no less! Animals are not counted towards this maximum so you may include a horse or a dog – even a fighting monkey if you so wish! Each warband may spend 300 gold pieces to hire characters and buy equipment. The optional rules for upgrading heroes can be used if you so wish. All characters must follow the rules of what you see is what you get unless they are carrying small items, of course.

The Dark Beneath the Streets: The sewers and catacombs beneath Miragliao are pitch dark and very dangerous. Warriors may see a distance of their own Initiative in inches when in the sewers. Being equipped with a torch or lantern will double the distance that characters may see.

Elves are able to see double their Initiative in inches and Dwarfs are able to see treble their Initiative in inches (this is multiplied by a lantern in the usual way). Players are advised to equip their characters with lanterns and grappling & rope if they intend on living through the scenario!

Vermin: All of the bad guys are controlled by a games master for this scenario. He decides whereabouts the vermin are in the catacombs and deploys them when they can be seen by the players. The games master commands the following vermin taken from the Skaven War

Starting the Game
All players roll a D6, with the highest scoring player going first and then in descending order of players.

Ending the Game
The game ends when either all of the tunnel fighters taking part fail their Rout tests or all of the vermin have been killed.

Experience
+1 Survives. If a Hero survives the battle they gain +1 Experience.
+1 Per Enemy Out of Action. Any Hero earns +1 Experience point for each vermin that he puts out of action.
+2 Putting Skaven Breeder Queen Out of Action. Any Hero earns +2 Experience point for putting the Skaven Breeder Queen out of action.

Rewards: Each warband earns itself 5 gcs for each vermin it takes out of action (the head of each rat killed).

The First Steps into Darkness...
It is getting colder now. Here, in the deepest bones of the earth, we Dwarfs are born, here we thrive and here I will die. Oh you wonder if it worries me? No, it worries me no more than it has for the hundred and three full moons since I knew that my doom would lead me here, to this cold hole beneath the pillars of the world. It is rich with gold down here, or that was the tale and that is what brought the others. I long ago forsook the love of gold for the search for death, in my shame exchanging one cold mistress for another.

Gold, that began it as well, drawing them down into the sewers. The scent of dampness and excrement waiting around us and the foul water washing over our boots as the dimming orb of lantern light floated ahead. Silence. Folk always talk of silence underground but there is no silence underground; the breath of twelve manlings and Dwarfs, the slosh of water and the skittering in the distance, clamped softly at our ears, the noise losing itself in the echoing passages to return stranger, darker and colder.

The Rat Ogre hid its sloshing steps in the echoes and so appeared before us as if solidifying out of the mists. Claw and fang flashed and blood spattered in the lantern light. Manlings shouted and the air filled with the reek of sulphur and the thunder of pistol shots. Massive rats began to flood the tunnel, their bodies spilling from between their huge mutated kin’s legs. Then there was a roar, the flicker of a blade and the Rat Ogre was falling, the rats squealing as they were crushed beneath.

The narrow darkness, filled with the threat of vermin sucked us on and down through the ruins of man, layering one over the other, one fleeting existence after another. The lantern’s oily glimmer illuminated our path until the light fell on hairless, surging flesh and the light opened a window into madness. It lay, its body twitching as it discharged young, its tiny head quivering within rolls of flesh. Blades hacked rough arcs through squalling bodies and screams rent the air, mingling with the blood of Dwarf, man and beast. For each vermin that died another came on. Blow after blow fell until we had made a road of corpses and the vermin woman lay undestroyed. It hissed and without a word my kin stepped forward, his axe swinging down and ended its life with a single blow. And with that blow we were set down the path to this place, where I sit alone by a candle’s light at the roots of the world.
